Yourrd of 23rd Jan<sup>r</sup> came safe to hand & gave me great satisfaction, to find You had safely arrived at Oakney, after your tedious passage; & I am glad to find Jenny likes her situation.

I cannot express how delighted I am to find Scott is at last detected; that he will meet with the punishment he deserves, & that it is likely the marriage will not take place; for nothing could give me more uneasiness than to be any ways connected with such a rascal.

I receiv'd a letter from our friends Johnston & Purys dated 6th Nov<sup>r</sup> 1708, wherein I am inform'd they intend to place me a prentice at a Druggist's in London, as they esteem it a profession that may best connect the business my Brother John may in a few years be qualified to undertake; & that they have commissioned Mr. Brymer & Mr. Adam Lyburner to procure me a place; but I have not heard from Mr. Brymer concerning it yet. I have not seen John since he came down with You; but I hope soon to have that pleasure as he promised me in his last letter.

Mr. Hathaway has given up his school to Mr.
Bellinton & is gone to live at Hackney. Mr. Jordan lives with him.

I Pray give my duty to my Uncle & Aunt, Mr. Geddes & Mr. Halero, & kind love to my Sister & Cousins; & accept the same, from, Dear Brother,

Yours, most sincerely,

Henry Taylor.
