Dear Nancy

I have been surprised at your silence and should have wrote again to you, but the illness of one of the infants prevented me. Poor little fellow! he was happily released from his pain this morning, and died in convulsions. I am very poorly myself with the anxiety I have sustained, together with repeated nights of Broken rest, but God in his Mercy has taken him from great sufferings, and I am resigned.

in regard my dear Boy to your situation. if you would wish to get into an active Ship your Uncle will do all in his power to remove you, if so. I should think you had better ask your Captain for leave of absence, and come to Town till we can see what can be done. at all events you will not have to return to the Sea. but act as you like best yourself - your Uncle has been much engaged so he would have written to you

He

has at last procured a situation at Yarmouth it is not a very lucrative one, but the Person that has given it him, may probably have one better soon. I shall remain in Town, at least for a time. if you come let me know when - Paddy and your Uncle desire their Love. God Bless you, my dear Boy, let me hear soon.

Your Affec^t. Parent
